

Join the Global Business Processes graduate programme

Want a life-changing business career? Our business track exposes you to a wide range of business processes, giving you the experience and skills to take on the world.

What is it about?

Employees working with global business processes in Novo Nordisk has a wide range of roles and responsibilities – but all share the same commitment to excellence and to drive the continued success of Novo Nordisk. This graduate programme will give you the opportunity to explore and develop skills within areas such as business development, corporate communication, public affairs, commercial strategy, supply chain and strategic R&D.

During the 2-year learning journey you will undertake rotations in our corporate headquarters in Denmark and in one of our global offices. You will work as a fully-fledged member of the team and in addition to intensive cross organisational business training the programme also offers you leadership-, project management- and teamwork skills development.

What do we offer?

Together we are life-changing. We are a successful global pharmaceutical company and the world leader in diabetes care. Your skills, dedication and ambition will give you the chance to make a significant difference and help Novo Nordisk continue to change lives for the better as we grow our business and help millions of people around the world.
